Medical Alumni Sponsor

Appearance of Paul Tillich On "Religion and Healing"

Dr. Paul Tillich, internationally noted theologian, is the featured participant in a program open to the public at Loma Linda University Tuesday evening, January 19.

Jack W. Provonsha, MD, associate professor of Christian ethics at the University, will join Dr. Tillich in the program entitled "A Conversation on Religion and Healing." Dr. Provonsha also is president of Loma Linda University School of Medicine Alumni Association, which is sponsoring the theologian's Southland appearance in cooperation with the University.

The dialogue on the relationship of medicine and religion is first in a series of six monthly programs observing the sixtieth anniversary of Loma Linda University. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the University Church.

Dr. Tillich is currently Nuveen Professor of Theology at the University of Chicago Divinity School. He began a brilliant teaching career in pre-war Germany, but his criticisms of the Nazi regime obliged him to flee to America in 1933. Here he quickly established a high reputation at Union Theological Seminary and Harvard Divinity School.

In 1954 the prolific author and teacher was appointed "university professor" at Harvard (the title is reserved for a handful of scholars who are free to work "on the frontiers of knowledge" without restriction to any one field). He joined the faculty of the University of Chicago in 1962.

Dr. Tillich has been an American citizen since 1940.

Beginning with the spring semester, Dr. Tillich will be teaching at the University of California, Santa Barbara, as a visiting professor.

S.P.S. Edwards, MD Dies January 3

Sanford Palmer Stillman Edwards, MD, pioneer physician, died January 3 in the University Hospital. His death at 91 years of age ended a long and active career during which he made major professional contributions to Loma Linda University, the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and San Bernardino County.

Dr. Edwards was born December 10, 1873 and was a native of Westerly, Rhode Island. After finishing his preparatory studies at South Lancaster Academy, Massachusetts, he went to the American Medical Missionary College in Battle Creek, Michigan, to study medicine.

He was the last surviving member of that school's first class, graduating in 1899. The medical school closed after a few years and later reopened in Loma Linda as the College of Medical Evangelists. After graduation he taught

Graduate School Will Give Stipends

The Graduate School announces that applications are now being accepted from qualified students for fellowships and assistantships for school year 1965-66.

Assistantships

Research or teaching assistantships are awarded to students working in masters' or Doctor of Philosophy programs in the following fields: anthropology, biology, chemistry, sociology, and the basic medical sciences (anatomy, biochemistry, microbiology, pathology, pharmacology, physiology, and biophysics).

Involving duties in the department not to exceed half time, these assistantships pay stipends up to $2,000 per academic year and may include remission of tuition.

Fellowships

Fellowships in the graduate academic departments are awarded to students whose previous scholarship and letters of recommendation give promise of significant accomplishment in graduate study. They involve no routine duties and recipients devote their full time to graduate study. The stipend is $2,000 for the academic year with remission of tuition and fees.

Dental Convention Planned for March

The dates for the 1965 alumni-student convention of the School of Dentistry have been set for March 17 through March 20. The first meeting of the annual affair will be Wednesday evening, and the convention will conclude with a dinner and business meeting Saturday night.

The keynote speech on Thursday morning will be delivered by Fritz A. Pierson, DDS, president of the American Dental Association.

general science in Battle Creek. He was serving as the first medical secretary of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists when he recommended the purchase of the property which later became Loma Linda University. Dr. Edwards gave the opening address at the formal dedication of the School of Medicine in 1910.

He was teaching physiology in the medical school when a great flu epidemic struck San Bernardino County in 1918. The county Board of Supervisors appointed Dr. Edwards health officer for the Mission District, the area from Redlands to Loma Linda.

He had as high as 1,000 patients ill with the flu at one time. Using a prescription of rest and a drugless diet of fruit juices, he once stated he didn't lose a case, in spite of thousands dying of the disease throughout the nation.

Though his health failed, he continued to serve the county

Medical Librarians Pass Examination

All six members of the first class in the Medical Record Administration Curriculum have passed the registration examination given by the American Association of Medical Record Librarians.

The graduates took the examination December 4. "All those who passed the test are entitled to use the initials 'R.R.L.' (Registered Librarian) after their name," said F. Faye Brown, director of the curriculum.

Members of the class that graduated last June are Sondra I. Deacon, Peggy A. Downs, Doreen M. Leung, N. Marie Nix, Linda D. Pechuanco, and Marilyn L. Sandborn.

Nine students are currently enrolled in the curriculum which leads to the Bachelor of Science degree.

The governor of the state of Madras in India, Jaya Chamarajiah Wadiyar, will speak on campus Monday, January 18. Earlier this week John S. Carman, MD, director of Vellore Christian Medical College and Hospital addressed students and faculty in the Monday morning convocation. Although both men live in the same state in India, their visits are not directly related.

Governor Wadiyar

The Indian official holds the inherited title of Maharaja of Mysore and is the governor of a state with a population of 50 million people. He is known for his progressive ideas, his study of Hindu scriptures and philosophy, and his study of music. He is a friend of the United States and is interested in its achievements.

A Hindu, Governor Wadiyar was born July 18, 1919 in Mysore. He was educated at the Maharaja's College, Mysore, and received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Mysore University in 1938. He also holds the LLD and LittD degrees.

Dr. Wadiyar is in southern California as a guest of Stanley R. Slotkin. Mr. Slotkin, chairman of the board of Abbey Rents, recently donated 60,000 books to the University Library.

The Maharaja will speak next Monday in the University Church at the weekly convocation. The time, however, has been changed from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Dr. Wadiyar

Dr. Carman

Dr. Carman joined the staff of Vellore Christian Medical College and Hospital more than twenty years ago under Dr. Ida S. Scudder who founded the institution in 1900.

Both he and his wife, Naomi, are graduates of Rochester University, New York. Dr. Carman received the Doctor of Medicine degree from Cornell Medical College.

Vellore is now one of the world's great medical centers. The college, in its 923-bed hospital, has 318 medical students in training, and graduates 60 nurses annually.

The daily out-patient attendance including visits to mobile dispensaries is 1,300. Over 100,000 new out-patients are treated each year. The hospital was the first in the world to develop reconstructive surgery for leprosy patients.

The institution is supported by 23 missions and churches in India, and by 39 church groups outside India including the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists which owns and operates Loma Linda University.

Smallness Is an Advantage

The University of California at Berkeley has been the focus of national attention during the past few weeks because of its so-called "free speech movement." For administrators at gigantic state universities the spectre of what happened at Berkeley has loomed large in a haunting question concerning the ability of the sprawling, renowned state university to give the students education rather than training.

Was the unrest at Berkeley really over "free speech"? The general consensus of those on the scene indicates that it was far from it. Most reliable sources seem to indicate that the nearly 800 students arrested during the mass demonstrations were far more concerned with what the Wall Street Journal called "the factory atmosphere" than with political issues.

In 1963 an authority on the problems faced by the state universities, University of California President Clark Kerr, predicted "incipient student revolt" against "faculty in abstentia" and smothering under a "bundle of impersonal rules." In his book The Uses of the University, Dr. Kerr also warned that students "want to be treated as distinct individuals."

For years the smaller colleges and universities of the nation have quietly worked with their students, often limited by resources, in the face of the reputation of the huge publicly financed institution, while stoutly proclaiming that smallness was an advantage.

Smallness is an advantage. It is an advantage, however, only if the students can and do come in closer contact with fine faculty. It is an advantage if the traditional "in loco parentis" doctrine is one that is destined to foster positive growth, which is synonymous with change, and expanded abilities of decision making. Neither largeness nor smallness alone is the key to a broad education — excellence is the answer — excellence fostered in intimate student teacher relationships. Historically, true excellence has come in small doses, from unsuspected areas.

Smallness is an advantage.

Book Talk

by Alice Gregg

The Word of the Lord came unto me, saying:
O miserable cities of designing men,
O wretched generation of enlightened men . . .
Much is your reading, but not the Word of God,
Much is your building, but not the House of God. . . .
And the wind shall say: "Here were decent godless people:
Their only monument the asphalt road
And a thousand lost golf balls."

"The Rock," by T. S. Eliot

Thomas Stearns Eliot, who gathered the present, the past, and the future into a cadence of word pictures, has taken his last trip into the rose garden. He died January 5 in London at the age of 76.

Perhaps the most influential poet of our time, Eliot wrote from the heart-beat of contemporary experience. In his own cryptic style he chiseled out moods from the tasteful to the tawdry, from the beautiful to the ugly, from the secular to the ecclesiastical. His own definition of his poetry was that it was "thought felt."

"The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock," probably the best known, most often read of his poems, stages an organization man pathetically inhibited by life, indecisive, "measuring out his life with coffee spoons":

Time yet for a hundred indecisions;
And for a hundred visions and revisions . . .
And indeed there will be time
To wonder, "Do I dare?" and, "Do I dare?"
Time to turn back and descend the stair,
With a bald spot in the middle of my hair—

His first success was "The Waste Land," an analysis of our society, without Christianity, without love:

I think we are in rats' alley
Where the dead men lost their bones.

"Four Quartets," his most intensively studied and criticized poem, is his most complex. According to Elizabeth Drew, "All these quarters which make the various 'quaternities' are enclosed within an image of human experience as 'the turning world.' But the image of the turning world is twofold; there are two co-existent turning worlds, two 'spheres of existence.' One is the physical, external world of temporal and spatial manifestations; the world of perpetual change. The other is the unseen world of inner unchanging pattern, whose centre is 'the still point.' Man is 'involved' with both and is part of the pattern of both. The themes of the poems are the revelation of this double relationship—to the world of nature and to the world of spirit—and of the results of the lack of relationship."

Eliot extended his poetry into the drama form reasonably early in his writing career. Murder in the Cathedral, his best known drama, is about the murder of Thomas à Becket in 1170 and the spiritual testing, which is of concern to all Christians. In The Cocktail Party he uses the theme of the need for spiritual love as well as human love.

Having lived a life of belief in Christianity, then doubt, then belief, Eliot has been able to communicate more meaningfully to doubters than many contemporary writers.

He shall be missed.

We die with the dying;
See, they depart, and we go with them.
We are born with the dead:
See, they return, and bring us with them.

The Graduate School department of nursing continues to enroll the largest number of students of any department.

The Thin Gray Line

The division between right and wrong has steadily decreased to a point of fusion.

In the society of today men and women are salving their consciences by saying "they all do it." Such an attitude seems to mean that the question of whether an act is right or wrong is apparently no longer separated by a thick black line, but has become fused together in a thin gray line.

The examination cheater, the expense account chiseler, the compromised judge, the stealing delinquent whose parents "gave him everything," the hasty physician, or the rioting minorities no longer are expected to take responsibility.

They are excused by "It's Society, It's Environment, It's Heredity, It's an Underprivileged Area, It's a Broken Home." It is almost never You.

A person commits a wrong because he is insecure, because he hated his stepmother at nine, his salary is too low, he was raised in a socially estranged area, or any of a number of other "reasons." Do not misunderstand, we believe in the advances of the study of mankind and the science of the mind, but we wonder — why?

Why the words right and wrong seem foreign to our language. Why the word conscience is such a "square" word. Why a "square shooter" is jeered at. Why honesty is not the best policy.

What happens when the line between right and wrong is not even a thin gray line, but is finally erased? Where will civilized society be then? Will there be a defense against anarchy—against all manner of evils?

Whose responsibility is it to take responsibility for the acts of men? Society's? Environment's? The underprivileged area's? Mine? Yours?

According to the Personnel Handbook a leave of absence may be necessary because of personal reasons or circumstances beyond your control. After you have worked for the University one year, you may ask for a leave of absence for three months or less for any reason other than employment elsewhere. If your request for leave of absence is for an extended vacation or other personal reasons, your current work load, your length of service, the length of time you wish to be away from work, and available coverage are taken into consideration.

During the leave of absence you will not receive salary or pay for holidays falling within the leave, nor will vacation time or sick-leave time accrue for you. You may continue your Blue Cross membership by paying for your own premiums during the leave of absence. Arrangements for this are made through the Personnel office.

A leave of absence is granted by the Campus Business Administrator or the Hospital Administrator in counsel with the person in charge of your area of service and the Personnel Director.

You will be reinstated in your same or similar position when you return from your leave. If you do not return from your leave as specified, you will be terminated.

If your request is valid, and if you follow the above procedures in writing, your request will probably be approved. You will suffer no loss of tenure of service with Loma Linda University.
